Notes from the Executive Secretary

TO FFA MEMBERS

BY J. EARL FRICK, JR.

A large and enthusiastic crowd of more than 425 FFA members, advisors and guests attended the 1991 State FFA Convention June 12-14 at Clemson University. National FFA Vice President Julie Classen from Ayr, Nebraska, Dr. Dayna Waitley, a motivational speaker from New Hampshire, and a number of sponsors and leaders of youth organizations provided an interesting and exciting program. Congratulations to the FFA members, advisors and friends of the FFA, many of whom you will see in this issue of the magazine, who were recognized during the convention.

A new set of six FFA State Officers from throughout South Carolina were elected during the final session of the convention. They want to serve you and work with each chapter to help recruit new members and inform older members about the opportunities in the FFA organization. Please invite them to your chapter meetings and banquets. Their goal is to visit every chapter in the state during the 1991-92 school year.

The National FFA Convention is scheduled for November 13-16 in Kansas City. Airline rates are significantly higher this year as compared to 1990. The estimated cost including plane fare and room is $368 for students and $400 for adults. The South Carolina Association has reserved a number of airline seats from Columbia, Greenville, Myrtle Beach and Charlotte. Rooms have been reserved at Howard Johnson Central in Kansas City. Airline seats and rooms will be allotted on a first-come, first-served basis. Make your plans now to attend the National FFA Convention, obtain necessary forms from your advisor through your district consultant, and return the forms well ahead of the October 1 deadline.

TO YOUNG FARMERS

BY RUSSELL S. WILLIS

The Edgefield and Saluda Young Farmer Chapters will host the Summer Tour in Aiken next month. This year's tour promises to be another good one. Registration begins Friday afternoon, August 9 at the Holiday Inn, Aiken. Exact tour times and locations are being finalized and should be in your mail this week.

Plans are now being made to attend the National Young Farmer Institute in Mobile, Alabama, on December 11-15. Those interested in attending either by group or individually should call me at 882-6762 or Hugh McClimon at 734-8426 for more information.

Mark your 1992 calendars now to attend the State Young Farmer Convention in Charleston on January 17-19. The event will be at the Sheraton and promises to be as informative and entertaining as last year's. If you have not been to a state convention in several years, this will be an opportune time for you and your chapter to participate. More information on the Charleston Convention will be coming to you in the fall.

Each livestock contestant must present orally a set of reasons for breeding techniques.

The top FFA Livestock Judging team, Wagener-Salley, includes Jeri Johnson, Clint Brown, Danny Sheppard, advisor Allen Williams.

Wagener-Salley Wins April Livestock Judging Contest

The Wagener-Salley FFA Team tallied 1,007 of a possible 1,200 points to win the annual State FFA Livestock Selection and Grading Contest in April at Clemson. The team, composed of Clint Brown, Jeri Johnson, Danny Shepherd and Craig Neely, will represent South Carolina in November at the American Royal Livestock Show in Kansas City. The team judged seven classes of beef and swine to beat nineteen other chapter teams. Allen Williams is FFA advisor.

Top individual trophies went to Jeri

Johnson of Wagener-Salley, first; Genni Impson of Hillcrest, second; and Warren Larrimore of Britton's Neck. Top district plaques went to the following teams: Hillcrest, District 1; York, District 2; Britton's Neck, District 3; and Wagener-Salley, District 4.

Andrew Jackson, McCollough Win Timber Harvesting

Andrew Jackson's winning team at April's Timber Harvesting Field Day included: Ardrey McCollough, Tracy Rush, Kent Craig, advisor George Morrow, Adam Knight, and Travis Robinson.

The team of Ardrey McCollough, Tracy Rush, Kent Craig, Adam Knight and Travis Robinson won first place for Andrew Jackson in annual Timber Harvesting Day in April. Other FFA chapters represented were Andrews, Crescent, Hillcrest (Dalzell) and Walterboro.

McCollough won top individual honors with 451 points out of 500 possible.

Crescent FFA student Jon Rainey was second with 441 and Tracy Rush of Andrew Jackson won third with a score of 423. The three individuals received trophies and cash awards for their efforts.

The students had to estimate both standing saw timber and pulpwood in standing trees. They also competed in scaling saw logs and identifying trees.

Mel Hinson of Westvaco coordinated the contest and activities which included a catered barbeque lunch. He was assisted by Butch Turner of Stone Container and Russ Hallberg of Catawba Timber. The event is held each year at Manchester State Forest in Sumter County.

HILLCREST CHAPTER WINS FORESTRY CONTEST

Four students — Christine Williamson, Genni Impson, Alena Eddleman and Brian Vaughn — from Hillcrest High School won first place in the FFA Forestry Contest in May. The team won a trip to Kansas City in November to represent South Carolina in the national FFA convention. Clark Woods is advisor.

The Pleasant Hill team of Stephanie Capps, Jamie Owens and Melissa Mathews placed second and the Ware Shoals team of Lee Wood, Lee Crawford and Patrick Jackson took third.

The contest, held April 27 at Camp Long in Aiken, was held in conjunction with 4-H Earth Day. Students competed in written forestry terms and tree identification tests, in standing tree measurements, and in pacing and compass use.

Receiving trophies for individual honors were Christine Williamson, first place, and Genni Impson, second place. Both are from the Crescent chapter. Lee Wood of Ware Shoals won third place.

Robbie Willing of the Aiken Chapter prepares to answer a question on tree identification during the FFA Forestry Contest.

Hurcules Rice, Jr., uses an increment borer to determine the age of a tree.

Eric Cleland and Micah Donaldson practice their tree measurements as Westvaco's Doug Parker watches.

Beaufort-Jasper Completes Forest, Field & Stream Course

Seventeen students completed FFA advisor Jack Queener's new course this year at Beaufort-Jasper CEC, "Introduction to Environmental and Natural Resources Careers." Three of those students — Eric Cleland, Micah Donaldson, and Peter Hamilton — competed for the first time in the FFA forestry contest in April.

While the general focus of the course was natural resources, it also included several weeks of forestry work with a forestry expert. Using the trees surrounding the center, Westvaco senior forest inventory technician Doug Parker worked with the students. He introduced them to the various tree measurements (diameter, height and volume) that foresters use and equipment, including an increment borer to determine the age of trees. The students were also introduced to current timberland management practices used by foresters in South Carolina.

Satisfied with the initial course offering, Queener looks for enrollment in the course to grow and for the center's outdoor lab to become a reality in the fall.

Queener is currently working on converting nine unused acres around the center into an outdoor resources laboratory and further expanding course activities.

1991 SCFFA Leadership Camp

The new state officers meet to review procedures for the leadership sessions in the camp auditorium.

Rachel Johnson of the Lake View Chapter helps raise the American flag during morning devotions.

FFA Leadership Camp last month attracted 127 officers from 37 chapters. The training sessions began on the 25th and provided the officers with guidelines in thinking skills and conducting meetings.

FFA advisors and members enjoy the relaxed atmosphere of the FFA Camp.

Program specialist Tony Hoyt of the National FFA Center was on hand Wednesday to begin the opening session.

Other camp activities included meals in the cafeteria, swimming, and playing the camp's miniature golf course.
